

Financial Advisor, Sheldon J. Harber, CFP® Announces Availability of Dynamic, Interactive Website

Retirement-focused website provides information on retirement income planning, Rollover IRA options, and the need for long-term care insurance.

St. Louis, MO – (Business Wire) – When it comes time for investors to plan for retirement income, there may be many issues to consider beyond investing. This is because retirement planning doesn't occur in a vacuum. Numerous associated issues including the consideration of a Rollover IRA, and planning for potential long-term care expenses are often considered when crafting a retirement income strategy.

To help investors more fully explore each of these often interrelated issues, Sheldon J. Harber of Asset Strategies has introduced a website that provides interactive learning tools and multimedia presentations on key topics related to retirement income planning. The website www.sharber.retirementtime.com is available now.

“I hope that people will visit my website to take advantage of the engaging and informative tools that are found there. Retirement income planning is often complex, and having access to quality information can be quite helpful,” says Harber. “I encourage visitors to my website to contact me if they wish to discuss their retirement income planning concerns.”
